crowd was in attendance.

The singles opened with Ward at once in the lead. The Middle States champion rushed matters, putting Wright constantly on the defensive. Ward's iwist service proved puzzling while his placing was timely and agreement. On the second set Wright and accurate. On the second set Wright took a brace and held his opponent at 5-5.

By steady work, Ward captured the next two games and the set. The contest seemed more in doubt when Wright took the third set, 8-2, but the rally was only temporary, and the match went to Ward, with only two warmes to Wright on the last set.

Who Likes Quall, in Season, as Well as His Colleagues, and Admits It, but Doesn't Agree With Them as to Evidence of Lawbreaking at a Supper at "Jack's."

To the literature of good living an entertaining page was added yesterday by Justice Charles H. Truax of the Supreme Court, when the opportunity for an expression of expert opinion on the wave of preparing quail for the table came up here, on appeal in the case of "Jack's" restaurant, which had been accused of selving the birds out of season.

Justice Truaz has a well-earned reputa tion as a judge of good eating. Whenever a famous old cellar is to be sold, the Justice is there to bid on the most prized bottles. At the Manhattan Club, of which he is the president, quail is served (in season) à la Truax. It is told of him that by feeling of the left wing of a quail he can tell in what field it fluttered last. Since Chamberlin died, he has had no peer in picking a canvasback. They hold themselves fortunate who have learned from the judicial lips how terrapin should be done or what a real mallard is. On the two important questions of birds and bottles, Truax, J., has never been reversed.

It was as a member of the Appellat Term-the intermediate place of appeal on the way to the Appellate Divisionthat Justice Truax wrote the opinion handed down yesterday for guidance in law and in cooking quail. Justice Freedman and Justice Gildersleeve did not agree wi'n him on the legal question at issue, so fustice Truex's views are contained in a dissenting opinion. He says:

am as fond of quail, in season and out of neason, à la broch, au laurier, au gratin, aux laitues, en croustades, à l'Anglaise, aux truffes, à la poèle, à la cendre, aux écrevisses, sous la cendre, au salpicon, en compote, au basilie, aspie, galantine, chaudfroid, pisque of quail, paté chaud, tourte de quail, or any other way, as is either one of my associates; but I cannot concur in the conclusions reached by them.

It is alleged in the complaint in this action, and admitted by the answer, that the de-fendants (John Dunston and others) were fendants (John Dunston and others) were engaged in business at 761 and 763 Sixth avenue, in this city. The evidence shows that the business carried on there was that of a restaurant. On the trial the witnesses called it a restaurant, and it was frequently referred to as the premises of the defendant and as Mr. Dunston's restaurant.

The evidence shows that quall were purchased on the premises mentioned in the complaint from a waiter who was employed in the restaurant. This evidence was not disturbed by the defendants, and but one conclusion can be drawn from the evidence.

clusion can be drawn from the evidence, and that is that the defendants had quail in their possession on the day testified to by the plaintiff's witnesses.

The record in the case disclosed many interesting details. The informer was John E. Overton, a State game protector, whose palate has been so pampered in pursuit of restaurant lawbreakers that his pearing is defective and he must use an trumpet. Mr. Overton invited Franklin Wood, a mercantile reporter, and two young women to dine with him, one night in February, 1902. Their companions were Miss Cancier, a stenographer in Mr. Over-tor's office, and a Miss Allison.

Their companions were Miss Cancier, a stenographer in Mr. Overton in Mr. Overton das a place where few people eat breakfast, but many make the welkin ring a little while before the hour for that meal. Mr. Overton ordered four quail, regardless of price. The waiter shouted down the ear trumpet that he'd find out if they had any. He came back a while later and reported that the birds were on the fire. They were served and Mr. Overton kept a small piece of his bird as evidence. The supper bill was $16. Mr. Overton did not remember what else they had, except overtex. The State Legislature and before the war and became interested in matters before the State Legislature and acted as a lebbyist at Harrisburg. He got the first street railway charter for Scranton. Then he took up the coal business with his brother. They opened up the Chittenden Colliery in Old Forge, which was afterward, sold to the Pennsylvania Coal Company, now the Erie.

At the close of the war, Samuel Chittenden came to Scranton before the war and became interested in matters before the war and became int fast, but many make the welkin ring a little while before the hour for that meal. Mr. Overton testified that he used to sell potatoes and apples, but had hunted game all his life. His official occupation had taken him to many restaurants, where ne always ordered ga season. He took Mr. Wood along because he knew so much about game.

Mr. Wood was asked by Municipal Justice Worcester of the trial court:

Mr. Wood was asked by Municipal Justice Worcester of the trial court:

Q. What is the difference between a quait and a pheasant in appearance? A. I do not know that I could tell you analytically, but if you will lay the two before me I could discriminate.

Q. What is the difference between a partridge and a quait? A. A full-grown partridge is twice as large. There isn't a great deal of difference in the meat or its appearance, but I believe the meat of a quait is somewhat whiter. The meat of a mature quait is firmer than that of a half-grown partridge.

Q. Do you know what Egyptian quait. They are reed birds. They are very much smaller than quait, not larger, in fact, than an English sparrow.

Q. Isn't it a fact that in the Southern States the so-called quait is a very small bird? A. What is generally known and caten as quait doesn't differ anywhere. I have lived in North Carolina and ought to know. In Georgia they call the quait a partridge, but that doesn't make it one. But I don't profess to be a naturalist. Localities have a right to name their own birds, I suppose.

And again he swore: "I know the taste of quail and I am sure that what we had

was quail."
But the game protector did not put in any evidence as to the guests' knowledge of the owners of the place. It was merely presumptive evidence that John Dunston had served quail. A court has held that the possession of the bird out of season was evidence of brid out of season was evidence of knowledge on the part of the owner. On the motion to dismiss the complaint the trial Judge suggested

"Perhaps the waiter had a little game bag of his own."

"Quite possibly," said Mr. Dunston's attorney. "The waiter may have trafficked in game exclusively."

The trial court dismissed the case. The problem sought to be collected was the

AS TO THE SUCCULENT QUAIL SUICIDE WAS MRS. M. A. H. POTTER. WOMAN'S TALE OF BLACKMAIL

Engine That Hit Her Was the One Driver by Wisker in Tunnel Bisaster. WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 26:-The woman in black who deliberately stepped in front of a Harlem express train near here last night and met a horrible death, was identified to-day as Mrs. Mary Agnes Hall Potter, an heiress to a large estate and a divorcée.

That Mrs. Potter intended to kill herself was proved by a letter found to-day in a desk at the home of Mrs. Bessie Lynes, of 114 Fisher avenue, where she boarded. It was addressed to "All the family and Mrs. Lynes." It read in part as follows: "Please forgive me for all the worries I have caused you. I am so tired of it all that I cannot resist doing this terrible act. My head is so tired. You are all better off without me. Good-by."

from her husband, Dr. F. F. Potter of Manhattan, a yearago, had been acting strangely ever since. Besides this she had other troubles about real estate which she owned and the loss of about $100,000, which her sister says was sunk in speculation.

Mrs. Potter had been boarding with Mrs. Lynes only five weeks. Since her divorce she had needed money to pay taxes on her real estate and had been unable to raise it. She even pawned some diamond rings to get the tax money, and the fear that her property might be sold for non-payment of taxes preyed on her mind.

A chamois bag containing half a dozen diamond rings worth about $1,500 was found tied around her neck. The Coroner turned it over to County Treasurer Carpenter.

It developed to-day that the engine that killed Mrs. Potter was No. 1013. It was this engine, with Engineer Wisker at the throttle, that caused the wreck in the Park avenue tunnel when it crashed into a New Haven local.

Mrs. Potter was the daughter of John

Mrs. Potter was the daughter of John Hall, of West Vienna, Oneida county. He is said to be worth $500,000. Mrs. Potter at one time owned $200,000 worth of real estate and stocks. She has three sisters and one brother. They are: Mrs. W. H. Klock of 134 East Forty-third street Miss Jessie B. Hall of 444 Lexington avenue, Charles B. Hall of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Jane R. Smith of Appleton, Minn.

OLD RECLUSE DEAD IN BED. Chittenden, His Acquaintances Think, Had

Some Property. Samuel N. Chittenden, who was nearly 70 years old, was found dead in bed yesterday in a furnished room at 50 West Twentyfourth street.

Chittenden was a good deal of a recluse and those who were acquainted with him knew little about his affairs. What little he did tell led his acquaintances to think he was a man of some wealth. He often talked of certain valuable gold mining stock he owned and until a few months ago spent a good deal of time in Wall Street. Coroner Scholer said his death was undoubtedly due to apoplexy. Chittenden's home is said to have been in Scranton, Pa.,

where he had a neplew living.

Mrs. Love has had two letters purporting to have been written by Hamilton. They are so rambling and so badly spelled and written that the police could make but little out of them.

Mrs. Love turned the letters over to Capt. Kear of the West Sixty-eighth street station on Thursday night. Detective Culhane went to 3 James street, a lodging house, an address given in one of the letters, and learned that Hamilton stayed there sometimes. He was so violent one night last week, the clerk said, that it took half a dozen men to put him out. Culhane found Hamilton later at Chambers street and Park row. He submitted quietly to arrest. When the case was called vesterday in the West Side police court Mrs. Octavia Hill, Mrs. Love's sister, appeared as complainant. Magistrate Zeller decided that Hamilton was insane.

AN ODD TOMATO CAN. Sent Through Malls, Covered With News paper Clippings.

Assistant Postmaster Newcomb yester day displayed to visitors at the Brooklyn Post Office one of the most curious packages of "mail matter" ever known to handled by that department. It was a common tomato can, with the lid cut out in the usual style, the sides covered with newspaper clippings and with a neat piece of white paper pasted and with a near piece of waite paper pasted over the top, with the address "Mr. Roy Holland, 190 Carleton street. Brooklyn," written in a girlish hand. Six one-cent stamps are also on the "address" side, with the post office request for "six cents" stamps are also on the "address" side, with the post office request for "six cents due."

The original paper covering of the can had been removed and the clippings neatly pasted around it. The clippings are the most remarkable part of the peculiar package. Among them are some entitled "the man who scrambles for money alone is a failure." "A busy man." "Bugville life." "The distinguishing feature of platonic love is that, while it sometimes leads, just[as other loves do, to the gates of paradise, it closes it there hopelessly in the faces of its victims."

The inside of the can is also decorated with such remarks as "Take your choice." "One result." "The dissipation of Brocklyn." "The favored few." "The high rollers." "The reflections of a spinster."

On the inside of the lid is pasted a piece of paper with the name "Roy" and on the bottom is the name Eva. A white isssel suspended by a silk cord from a hole in the margin about the top of the can is supposed to be an evidence of the sender's sense of the asthetic.

The can is held for a claimant, there being no Carleton street in Brooklyn.

HAS LED TO INVESTIGATION OF TENDERLOIN POLICE.

Mrs. Howard, Who Runs a Manieure Shop, Says a Caller Asked for $25, and That Plain Clothes Men Have Been Bothering Her Since He Falled to Get It.

It became known at Police Headquarters resterday that Inspector Walsh is investigating the story told by Mrs. Nellie Howard, who keeps a hairdressing and manicure shop at 489 Sixth avenue. Mrs. Howard says that she has been persecuted by men who said they were plain clothes policemen from the Tenderloin station.

Ten days ago, Mrs. Howard says, a man called on her and asked for $25. Mrs. Howard refused to pay it. She says that the man did not say that he was a policeman but seemed willing that she should get that impression. When she asked his reason for demanding protection money he said: "I just want it; that's all."

Two strange men called on Mrs. Howard the next day, according to her story, and asked to look over her place. They said they were policemen. They said something about having to make a report and then looked all over the floor Mrs. Howard occupies.

That afternoon there was another man caller who had the appaerance of a plain clothes man. He got his nails manicured, his face steamed and his hair shampooed by Mrs. Howard's woman assistant. He seemed to expect further attention, but went away after paying a check for $2.50. The next day Mrs. Howard was left alone. The following day she says she heard a noise outside her door and she opened it quickly. There was a man there who had evidently been listening at the keyhole. He said he had got in the wrong house. Another man was caught doing this the next day. Then a gray-haired, red-faced man called. He tried to convince Mrs. Howard that she was the woman who had had supper with him the night before. Mrs. Howard ordered him out of her place.

Mrs. Howard consulted her friends and Mrs. Howard consulted her friends and they advised her to go to the Tenderloin police station. She told her story to Capt. O'Connor, she says, and was assured that none of his men were her persecutors.

At this point in the story Mrs. Howard and Capt. O'Connor differ. Mrs. Howard told Inspector Walsh that she told Capt. O'Country that she could identify the ways. told Inspector Walsh that she told Capt. O'Connor that she could identify the man who tried to blackmail her as well as several of her annoyers. The woman says O'Connor never offered to let her identify any one. In a statement O'Connor has made to Walsh the Captain says he lined up his plain clothes men and that Mrs. Howard said that none of them had visited her. CONRIED GETS POL PLANCON. The French Basse Coming to New York

After Three Years' Absence. Heinrich Conried cabled yesterday to Ernst Goerlitz, secretary of the Conried Opera Company, that he had engaged Pol Plancon, who has not been heard in this country for the past three season, to sing country for the past three season, to sing basso foles in the French and Italian repertoire at the Metropolitan Opera House next season.

M. Plangen's father died during his last engagement in this country, and as his mother was in poor health, he decided to remain in Paris with her. He has sung in London since he appeared at the Metropolitan, but nowhere else. Last spring his mother died, and M. Plangon now feels at liberty to come to the United States.

Edouard de Reszke, the other basso, is to come only in case his brother Jean is engaged.

Cecil Spooner, who was the star at Daly's Theatre recently in "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town," has been engaged by Klaw & Erlanger for a term of years to appear in their productions. Her first appearance under their management will be made as the Duch Girl in "Mother Goose," the Drury Lane spectacle to be presented at the New Amsterdam Theatre in the coming season.

Stock Company to Control McGrathlana Stud.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 26.-Col. Milton Young, until a few years ago a poor farmer, but now the proprietor of the famous McGrathiana stud farm, comprising over two thousand acres of blue-grass land, on which thousand acres of blue-grass land, on which are roaming nearly four hundred thoroughbred brood mares, fourteen stallions and scores of young thoroughbreds, will, in order to perpetuate the place, organize and place in control of it a stock company. The concern is to be incorporated at $1,000,000, and Col. Young is to be president and manager.

The personnel of the company cannot be learned at this time, since it is the desire of the promoter to keep the plans secret until after his fall sales of yearlings. The place sells at private and public sales annually about 150 thoroughbred yearlings.

The stallions of the farm are imp. Pirate of Penzance. Onondaga, Jean Beraud, imp. Westminster. Cæsarian, imp. Woolsthorpe, imp. Sorcerer, imp. Alloway, The Friar. First Mate, imp. King of Coins, and imp. Semphronius. A number of English stallions are to be added, and the stud of mares is to be increased until the place is beyond question the largest breeding plant in America. It is now second to J. B. Haggin's Elmendorf Farm.

Walthour Wins in Motor Paced Race. WASHINGTON, June 26.-In the five-mile motor-paced bicycle race on the local bowl to-night between Bobby Walthour, Nat Butler and Floyd Freeman, the first name rider had a walkaway, and won the first and third heats from Butler and the race by taking two out of three heats. Butler beat Freeman in the second heat. The time for Walthour's first five miles was 5 minutes 55 3-5 seconds. The heat was a hot one, and Butler was not more than fifty feet from the winner at the finish. Butler led Freeman throughout the second heat, the time being 7 minutes 8 1-5 seconds.

This afternoon they play the finals against the winner of the match between Mrs. Chapman and H. Torrance, Jr., and Miss Risch and F. G. Anderson. H. Torrance, Jr., and H. E. Avery won the only contest played in the men's doubles. of 1901 at 331, the last in this country with the solid ball.

There was a great crowd to watch the players, which included as many strangers to the game, to judge by their comments, as the golfing set. Auchterlonie, who is easily bothered by outsiders, had more than once to rebuke individuals in his "gallery" for pressing too close or for loud talking, and others had troubles of their own from the same source. The trained golfers who followed only expressed their emotions with a fervent "Ah" after each great drive. like the crowd at the fireworks shows when a rocket goes up. The U. S. G. A. officials in charge were

Messrs. Windeler, Heebner, Ballou, Larkin and Mertin, who had the aid also of former President R. H. Robertson. The Baltusrol committeemen were Messrs. Graham, Morgan and Bayard, Jr., who provided scores for the forty-five pairs to start. The first pair teed up at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and the last pairs left for the second round at 4:25 o'clock in the afternoon, the last cards being in by 6:40. George Low, the Baltusrol "pro," was one of the onlookers, and there winner of the match between Mrs. channer and H. Torrance, Jr., and Miss Risch and F. G. Anderson. H. Torrance, Jr., and H. E. Avery won the only contest played in the men's doubles.

The final rounds in the left over events of the New York Tennis Club tourney were finished yesterday afternoon on the club courts St. Nicholas avenue and 123d street, J. P. Paret won the open scratch contest in men's singles, defeating Robert Le Roy of the home club 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. In the doubles Paret and Le Roy carried off the honors over R. D. Little and E. P. Fischer. It was so nearly dark when the match was started that the teams agreed to let one set decide. A hard fought match in the finals of the mixed doubles gave the prize to Miss Helen Homans and T. C. Trisk. They defeated Miss Anna M. Risch and David Sands of the home club. Men's Scratch Singles—Semi final round—J. P. Paret, New York T. C., defeated David S. Sands, New York T. C., defeated H. Torrance, Jr., 6-0, 5-7, 6-2.

C., de 6-8. at Baltusrol, besides beating all previous records on the first day of any open championship, wherever played. He did not start until after 11, and was fortunate in having W. C. Carnegie as partner, for the amateur made an ideal coach. There was not a large following, for the Auchterlonie and Travis matches had drawn off the bulk of

On the first hole Anderson drove well to the right, to keep away from the out of bounds that punishes a pull, and, taking the bunker by a fine brassey play, he made the green by a short pitch and holed in par 5. He was on the second green, 376 yards, with a drive and a mashie, getting the needed 4. A drive with his brassey spoon carried the third green, 200 yards, and he had a par 3 with ease. The fourth, 488 yards, was a drive and a brassey, Anderson pitching nicely on the green with the mashle and holing in the orthodox 2 puts for 5. On the ofth, 300 yards, and the sixth, 340 yards, Anderson made the greens with a drive and a mashie, getting a par 4 on each. The seventh, 425 yards, was made in 5, a stroke over par, for the second, with the brassey, had a slight slice and did not hold the green. The uphili eighth hole, 283 yards, also a par 4. Anderson also recorded a 5 on, for his mashie pitch was too far to the right to keep the green. To make up, Anderson saved a stroke on the ninth, 182 yards, by holing a put from the edge of the green for 2. This made the out holes 37, par being 36.

Coming in Anderson recorded a 3 and successive 4s, absolute par, to the fourteenth, getting off drives that were a treat to behold, long and right to the flag, and playing the short game without the slightest flaw. The fifteenth, 464 yards, was a stroke under par, green with a drive and a brassey, getting | defeat by an innings and 70 runs. C. Dalton green with a drive and a brassey, getting down in 4. Par followed on the next three holes of the journey, although on the sixteenth, 525 yards, he was in the bunker in his brassey shot. Undismayed, Anderson made the green with the niblick and saved the par total being 37.

In the afternoon Anderson dropped a stroke on the second and sixth, overplaying the green on the former and pulled out of bounds on the latter. The tenth, where the bail dropped in a soft spot, cost him a 5, the par being 3, but he had the halves in 38, making the round 76. This tenth hole is at the drainage of the surface water, so that Itwas a cause of trouble to all. The only way to play was to drop squarely on the green, when a 2 twas as apt to occur as a 3. Carnegie had a 2 this time, but Anderson was short and dropped inta a muddy spot.

Auchterionie also had a 5 here on his morning round, yet he finished in 74, although a penalty stroke made the recorded card 75. Ilis only mistake of the morning was a pulled drive on the sixth hole, which hit a tree and teenth, 525 yards, he was in the bunker in his brassey shot. Undismayed, Anderson made the green with the nibilick and saved the par of 5. He came home in 36, the par total being 37.

In the afternoon Anderson dropped a stroke on the second and sixth, overplaying the green on the former and pulled out of bounds on the latter. The tenth, where the ball dropped in a soft spot, cost him a 5, the par being 3, but he had the halves in 38, making the round 76. This tenth hole is at the foot of a hill and the fair green gaps the drainage of the surface water, so that Itwas a cause of trouble to all. The only way to play was to drop squarely on the green, when a 2 was as apt to occur as a 3. Carnegle had a 2 this time, but Anderson was snort and dropped into a muddy spot.

Auchterlonie also had a 5 here on his morning round, yet he finished in 74, although a penalty stroke made the recorded card 75. His only mistake of the morning was a pulled drive on the sixth hole, which hit a tree and made him a 5, but this set off the stroke he had saved by a 3 on the fifth hole. With 31 for eight holes, Auchterlonie should have finished in 34, but his high cleek shot for the ninth dropped the ball into a soft place on the green and it was imbedded.

Auchterlonie though he could lift and replace the ball loosely, a privilege not granted in the new rules. The scorer supported him in the opinion, but as he touched the ball, his partner, "Nipper" Campbell, called out: "Dinna lift, mon; ye may be disqualified:"

Auchterlonie at once withdrew his hand. The scorer then told him to play the imbedded

Bryn Mawr Easily Defeats Philadelphia Country Club in Championship Game. PHILADELPHIA, June 26 .- Although actully earning a goal, the Philadelphia Country Club suffered the ignominy of an official shutout in the first pole match for the Senior championship against Bryn Mawr on the a pretty goal just at the close of the third Club by Referee Alternus completely eliminuiud by Referee Altemus completely eliminated that goal from the score board. A safety by McFadden in the last period compelled the Country Club to finish with ½ goal to the bad. The Bryn Mawr players simply won as they pleased. They earned 13 goals, but a bit of mallet hooking by Rosengarten cost them a ½ goal, making their net score 12½ goals. 121 goals.

Seawanhaka Corinthians Lead in First of Match Series With American Y. C.

A strong southerly breeze permitted the competing yachts in the second day's regatta of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yache Club's gala week to finish in reasonable time yesterday. The feature of the day's sport was the first of the series of match races between raceabouts, representing the Seawanhaka Corinthian and the American Yacht clubs. The conditions called for three boats from each club, and the points awarded allowed one for each yacht defeated. The winner, C. H. Crane, brought out a new boat, the Lania, and handled herexcellently throughout.

The courses for all races were triangular, all except the boats in the match race voyaging once over the long course. The land named sailed twice around the regular club course. Distance, twelve nautical miles. MATCH RACE-START 1:36.

SHAMROCKS READY FOR TRIAL. Challenger Will Show What She Can Do in First Spin Here To-day.

The two Shamrocks are anchored off Stapleton. The Shamrock I. left the Erie Basin in the morning in tow of the tug Cruiser tonka essayed conclusions with an eleven of the New Jersey C. C. yesterday, at Livingston, and was taken to Stapleton, where she and was taken to Stapleton. The Shamrock III. was not quite ready at that time to leave the basin. Her spars at that time to leave the basin. Her spars have all been painted, and yesterday the crew rove the running gear. Then the mainsail was got on deck and bent on, and late in the afternoon it was furled on the boom and the sail covers put on. The Cruiser then towed the Shannrock III. to Quarantine.

Sir Thomas Lipton and Designer Fife came back from Washington last night. They were taken from Jersey City by the tug Cruiser to the Erin and then went down to the yachts.

The two boats will have their first trial in these waters to-day, instead of towing down to the Hook and then starting from there, they will sail from Stapleton.

Brokers Betting on International Yacht Race.

In Wall Street yesterday R. W. Offord, in the curb market, bet A. Gwynne, another broker, $500 to $300 that the Reliance would not win three straight races from the Sham-rock III. in the coming international Cup races.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN. Many Postponed Runs and Races On for To-day and Te-morrew.

The postponed "Eye-Opening Half Century" of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New York will be held to-morrow, starting from 1904 Broadway at 20 clock in the morning. There is not a mile of road retraced in the whole route, which is over new roads, through many unfamiliar places in Westchester and The Bronx.

Bobby Walthour, who was originally scheduled for the paced circuit race at the Manhattan Beach opening two weeks ago, has been substituted for Mettling, and will ride in the three five-mile heats sgainst George Leander and Joe Nelson at the beach this afternoon. The entries for the big amateur handloap with a horse and buggy for a prize have totalled up to eighty-five during the wait caused by the weather. This breaks all records for amateur races. All the heats and the final will be run to-day.

Most of the New York clubs holding regular runs have decided to join the "Half Century" of the associated clubs to-morrow. The New York and the Alpha Motor Cycle Clubs will have a joint run to Greenwich, Conn.

The Century Road Club of America will inaugurate to-morrow a "midsummer century"
run over Long Island roads with a new route, starting from Bedford Rest and going to Bay Ridge, then to Coney Island, Bedford
Rest, Jamaica, Valley Stream, Freeport, Amitaville, Hicksville, Massapequa, Lonbrook, Jamaica, and back to the start. As in the "spring century," there will be a road race for the fast division in from Massapequa, with ten prizes offered to the first ten to finish.

Bothner and Kelter Draw. George Bothner met Arthur Kelter of the Reliance A. C. at the London Theatre last night. The men came together at catch-as-catch-can style for one hour's duration, and the result of the contest was a draw.
